Press trouble causes delays

The Times-News apologizes to its subscribers for late papers caused by a press breakdown. As a result of early news deadlines, some regular features have had to be eliminated.

We hope to have the press operational for Wednesday's edition.

Today's paper was printed by the courtesy of the North Side News in Jerome.

N. Viets raid key Laos base

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese commandos early today raided the secret Laotian base of CIA-supported guerrillas leader Gen. Vang Pao despite massive American air strikes carried out against increased resistance by North Vietnamese MIGs and missiles.

Gen. Thongphan Knockay, the official Laotian military spokesman, said in Vientiane that the military situation in Laos was deteriorating rapidly since the strategic Plain of Jars fell to the North Vietnamese on Monday.

The situation also was serious in Cambodia where a string of Communist successes have threatened the capital of Phnom Penh and brought a grave political crisis that threatens the government of Premier Lon Nol.

Canal suds

U.S. military sources said stepped up Communist MIG and missile warfare had downed five U.S. planes over the weekend and two Laotian air force T-28s, most of them over the Plain of Jars or near the border of North Vietnam and Laos.

U.S. sources said the American planes had hit antiaircraft and missile sites in Laos and in North Vietnam near the Quang Long MIG base, believed to be the base of Russian-built MIGs that downed one and possibly three of the American planes.

The Plain of Jars about 120 miles north of the Laotian capital of Vientiane controls almost every important highway in Laos and has been fought over for the past two decades with each side winning it from time to time.

Long Veng, the secret base of Gen. Vang Pao, is in the mountains about 20 miles below the Plain. Knockay said 20 North Vietnamese commandos slipped into the base today, damaged a parked aircraft and burned three military barracks and a truck. Knockay said three attackers and three defenders were killed and nine guards wounded.

Diplomatic sources said Kurt Waldheim of Austria, Max Jakobson of Finland and Carlos Ortega de Rojas of Argentina received the minimum-of-nine required votes or more but that each was rejected by one of the 18-nation Council's five permanent members.

A secretary general customarily is elected to a five-year term by the 132-member General Assembly upon recommendation of the council. Any of the five permanent council members—The United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and China—can block the nomination by casting a "no" vote, which constitutes a veto.

Thant, of Burma, has stuck to his determination to step down Dec. 31 after serving two consecutive five-year terms.

The Council recessed and agreed to reconvene on the issue at 5 p.m. EST Tuesday.

34 saved from ship

MIAMI (UPI)—An American Merchant ship rescued 34 crewmen from the flaming tanker Calypso off the north coast of Cuba early today but the captain and five men stayed aboard in an attempt to save the vessel, the Coast Guard reported.

The Coast Guard said a lifeboat was alongside the Cyprus-registered Calypso in case the skeleton crew, which also included a radio operator and an engineer, decided to leave the stricken ship.

Local authorities have become increasingly concerned about this kind of industrial pollution which is caused by factories which discharge chemical wastes into the river (UPI).

Trailer court ordinance OK

TWIN FALLS — City council unanimously approved a new ordinance governing the construction and design of mobile home parks Monday night.

The ordinance regulates all new mobile home parks in the city, including one contemplated at Filer Avenue and Martin Street.

Ross Ward, who plans to build the new park, has met with the council the past three meetings to request modification of some regulations.

Attorney Lloyd Webb, representing Ward, asked Monday night for modification of the 25-foot set back on all sides of a park. The council rejected the request, approving the ordinance without modification.

The ordinance was adopted under suspension of the rules following one full reading.

Future mobile home parks can be no smaller than two acres and have no more than seven units per acre. Each unit must be screened from surrounding property by a 25 foot "green belt" area on all sides plus a fence or other screening material.

The meeting was the last for three outgoing council members, Mayor Frank Feldman, and councilmen Eugene Stacey and Frank Cook.

City Manager Jean Miller expressed appreciation on behalf of city employees to the three whose term expire Dec. 31.

Big hike asked for schools

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Education will impose an 8 per cent commission on all sales of rubles for dollars. The official exchange rate of $1.11 per ruble, which was established in 1961, remains the same.

Thus, the sales commission means that $100 now buys only 82 rubles instead of the 90 rubles that amount to U.S. money had purchased since 1961.

Western economists and business already regarded the ruble as vastly over-valued. It sells generally at 400 to 500 rubles for $100 on black markets inside and outside the Soviet Union, even though the late Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev declared it to be worth 10 per cent more than the dollar on Jan. 1, 1961.

The Soviet monetary move Monday has no effect upon international commerce or finance because the ruble is a purely domestic scrip exchanged for local goods and services and is not freely convertible into other currencies, not available on exchange markets.

The superintendents, in Boise for a two-day meeting, tabled until Tuesday a resolution calling for an increased appropriation of $10 million for "current and present programs."

Resolutions approved included full funding of the higher education program, legislative appropriation for career education programs in grades one through 12, establishment of the State Department of Education.

At a black tie dinner hosted by Heath on the Royal Navy guided missile destroyer HMS Glamorgan, Nixon noted in his formal toast that the relationship, which meant so much in 1963, in 1967, and in 1971 at previous U.S.-British summits in Bermuda, "is not the same."

Spending some eight hours together Monday, Nixon and Heath frankly acknowledged that the old traditional ties between their two countries must loosen when Britain enters the Common Market next year and turns toward Europe.

Their two-day meeting, with no "structured agenda," was

Russia adjusts $ rates

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union raised the dollar price of the ruble by 8 per cent Monday to offset the devaluation of the U.S. currency, but it did not change the official parity.

The government's action had no effect other than to raise the price of the ruble purchased for dollars within the Soviet Union.

The Soviet State Bank raised the ruble's price in dollars by imposing an 8 per cent commission on all sales of rubles for dollars. The official exchange rate of $1.11 per ruble, which was established in 1961, remains the same.

Thus, the sales commission means that $100 now buys only 82 rubles instead of the 90 rubles that amount to U.S. money had purchased since 1961.

Elementary students will return to school Wednesday. They will have their Christmas program, but other school activities, including the Wood River - Shoshone basketball game, have been canceled.

Officials at Murtaugh said 30 per cent of students were absent Monday. The Camas County-Murtaugh basketball game tonight was to be held, but other school functions were being canceled because of the flu.

the areas of Anglo-American agreement were "very broad indeed" and that points of difference were "very narrow." Heath said that "We in the west must never forget our responsibilities toward the third world ... the developing nations, too, must be part of this process of discussion and examination (and) their interests must be taken fully into account in any decisions."

In this spirit, Rogers and Secretary of the Treasury John Connally announced that Nixon would ask Congress in January for special trade concessions, which Connally said might include exemptions from quota restrictions, for developing nations.

"Less developed countries particularly in Latin America will be greatly benefited," Rogers said.

SV backs Elkhorn resort

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley Councilmen Monday approved the concept of the $36 million Elkhorn development project.

Plans for the joint project of Johns Manville, Inc., and Sun Valley Co., had been presented to the Council Dec. 14.

The council had been unable to act then for lack of a quorum.

City Attorney Thomas Nelson said Monday night that the council's approval necessarily would be "binding."

He said the only legally binding decision on the project could be made after a "comprehensive plan of the whole Elkhorn Village, including the presently developed Sun Valley," was submitted to the city.

Hal Lynch, vice president of planning and architecture of ReAction, Inc., Newport Beach, Calif., project managers, said the intent of the developer's was to "see if the direction is acceptable to the council."

Council man Harry Holmes said "The city very seldom gets as complete and thoroughly prepared plan" as the Elkhorn development.

Nixon, Briton find special relationship thing of past

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) — President Nixon and British Prime Minister Edward Heath conclude their summit talks today in agreement that the historic Anglo-American "special relationship" is a thing of the past—but a new partnership must be forged for the future.

Spending some eight hours together Monday, Nixon and Heath frankly acknowledged that the old traditional ties between their two countries must loosen when Britain enters the Common Market next year and turns toward Europe.

The fact that it is not the same does not mean that it is still not very necessary, and perhaps even more important than it was.

the fourth in a series of sessions Nixon has scheduled with major allied leaders in preparation for his trips to China and the Soviet Union early in 1972.

At a black tie dinner hosted by Heath on the Royal Navy guided missile destroyer HMS Glamorgan, Nixon noted in his formal toast that the relationship, which meant so much in 1963, in 1967, and in 1971 at previous U.S.-British summits in Bermuda, "is not the same."

The fact that it is not the same does not mean that it is still not very necessary, and perhaps even more important than it was.

"We live in a world where there are dangers on the scene that no one could foresee 25 years ago, at the end of World War II, or even 10 years ago in 1961," Nixon said.

He said that while Heath seeks to explore new opportunities in Europe, "we in our own policies, seek to explore those opportunities for building a structure of peace, by these significant journeys to nations with which we have now and will continue to have very profound differences of philosophy."

In his toast Heath also referred to the new relationship.

"A healthy relationship can withstand change," Heath said.

"And as the date of Britain's entry into the European community approaches, there will indeed be some changes in our relations."

"I see no cause for alarm or dismay in this. In many fields our traditional ties will remain unchanged. We have always made it clear that we believe that a United States should maintain the closest possible links with the United Kingdom based on mutual respect and understanding."

Head of Disney studios dies

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — Roy O. Disney, whose behind-the-scenes business acumen built an entertainment empire on his brother Walt's talent for drawing "lovable" talking animals and making innocent dreams come true, died late Monday night. He was 78.

The cause of death was a cerebral hemorrhage that took the pioneer movie executive's life at 11:45 p.m. PST (2:45 a.m. EST) at St. Joseph's Hospital, a Disney studio spokesman announced.

Roy Disney inherited the Disney entertainment empire, and was its chief moving spirit, following the death of Walt Disney from cancer in 1966. His official title was chairman of the board and chief executive officer. His real function, as he saw it however, was keeper of the "wholesome" spirit that Disney created, and that permeated their cartoons, movies and amusement parks.

Roy Disney pushed through creation of the $300 million Disney World development in Orlando, Fla., after Walt's death, and devoted himself to keeping the business financially successful, and following the same lines that Walt established.

It was Roy who loaned $250 to Walt, who kicked in $40 and his early talents as a film animator to the partnership to open a cartoon studio in a small rented building behind a real estate office in Hollywood in 1923. An uncle loaned them another $500.

The Disney studios have won more than 30 Academy Awards, pioneered many aspects of animated cartooning, became universally acknowledged masters of nature cinematography, developed a stable of movie stars on their own, produced a long-time television staple "The Mickey Mouse Club," and spun off is good," he told newsmen in 1969, noting that when Disney went into the money market, it sold $90 million worth of bonds in two months.

The Disney brothers were the children of a Canadian-Irish building contractor named Elias Disney, and were born in Chicago and raised there and in Marceline, Mo. Roy worked as a bank clerk in Kansas City and served as a petty officer on a Navy cargo ship in World War I before joining his brother in the cartoon business.

Roy Disney was proud of the financial work that made possible the growth of the Disney corporation.

Israeli-Egyptian accord unlikely

By United Press International
Israeli former military leaders Moshayd ruled out a possible "gentleman's agreement" between Egypt and Israel on limiting the scope of any new flareup along the Suez Canal.

"(Egyptian President Anwar) Sadat is trying to reach a gentleman's agreement with us ... to keep hostilities on a very limited scale," said retired Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog during a radio panel discussion. "We should make it clear here today that under no circumstances shall we accept his terms. A war nearly always gets out of hand."

"We are in the midst of a war of nerves Sadat has chosen to wage against us," said Herzog, military intelligence chief from 1959-1962. "It is clear he would do anything to avoid going to war."

Plant destroyed

PAYETTE (UPI) — Flames and a series of explosions destroyed a block-long mobile home manufacturing plant five miles north of here Monday afternoon. The firm employs 70 persons and produced six motor homes per day.

Payette County Sheriff's deputies said there were no injuries.

Fire fighters from Payette and Ontario, Ore. fought the blaze for nearly two hours before bringing it under control.

Frequent explosions hampered firemen's efforts and the flames were so hot parts of the metal structure melted, a witness said.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m. today in the Burley-LDS First Ward Chapel with Bishop Francis E. Ham officiating.

*"Don't forget

Mothers always used to say things like that, and they still do. "Be careful when you cross the street," and "Don't pull your milk!" sound as familiar to kids today as they did a couple of generations ago.

And we think that's good. Because it's a demonstration of caring which is carried from generation to generation — and caring is what funeral service is all about.

Baker denied parole; Berrigan due hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert G. "Bobby" Baker, former protege of Lyndon B. Johnson, was denied parole Monday from a one-to-three year sentence for tax evasion, larceny and fraud.

But the eight-member U.S. Board of Parole granted an attorney's request Daniel Berrigan a new hearing Jan. 26 on grounds of his failing health.

Baker, 43, had his case continued for the presentation of "further information" and a new hearing in April. He began serving his sentence at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison

Jan. 14 and became eligible for parole as of next Jan. 13.

Baker parlayed his job as secretary to the Senate Democrats into a million dollar fortune by using his influence.

The vote by the board was not disclosed in either case.

Berrigan, 51, was sentenced Nov. 8, 1968, to three years for destruction of government property in connection with a raid on the Catonsville, Md., Selective Service offices that year.

He and his priest-brother Philip Berrigan, the central figure in the kidnap-bomb plot involving White House aide Henry Kissinger, are both in prison at the federal corrections institute at Danbury, Conn.

Daniel Berrigan began serving his sentence Aug. 11, 1970, and was denied parole the first time he applied in July, although he became eligible Aug. 10.

At that time, the board said he must serve his full sentence minus good time, which would have freed him until Nov. 23, 1972.

The new hearing set for next Jan. 26 will consider "new information, including his failing health."

The board also denied parole to Anthony De Angelis, 56, key figure in a multi-million dollar fraud involving salad oil, margarine and shortening. The board set Dec. 1972 for its final review of his case.

De Angelis, the so-called "Salad Oil King" from New Jersey, will become eligible Jan. 27 after serving one-third of a 20 year sentence for transporting nearly $100 million worth of false and forged securities across state lines. He began serving his sentence at Lewishburg Jan. 15, 1965.

The board did grant parole to Calvin Kovons, 47, a co-defendant with former Teamsters President James R. "Jimmy" Hoffa in a union pension fraud case. It was the second time Kovons had applied for parole since he began serving a three-year indeterminate sentence at Elgin Air Force Base, Fla., Feb. 13. He will be released May 1.

In a related action, the Justice Department confirmed it has received a request from Hoffa himself, asking President Nixon to commute his two prison terms of a total 13 years for fraud and jury tampering.

'Lib' leader cited

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gloria Steinem, author, journalist and lecturer for the Women's Liberation movement, has been chosen as "McCall's Magazine" "Woman of the Year." It was announced Monday.

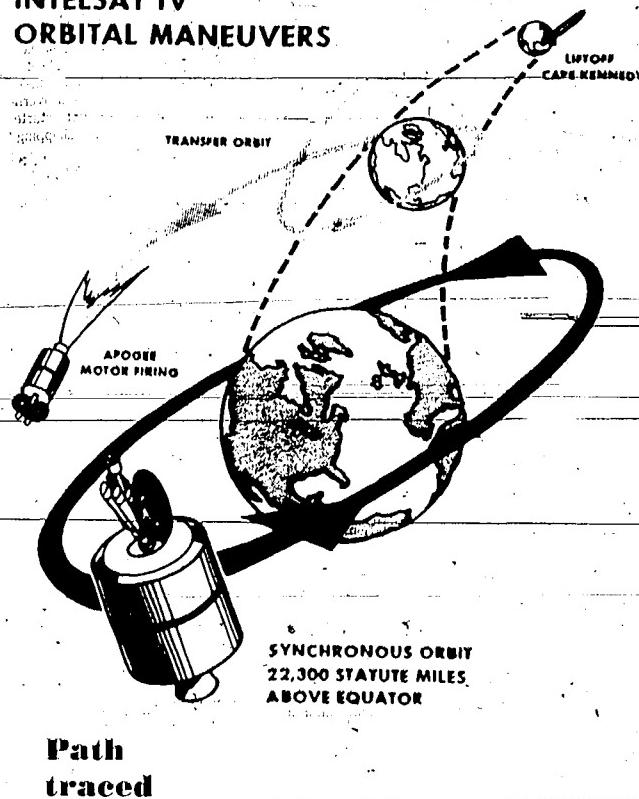

Miss Steinem was cited for her contributions "to bridge the gap between the early militants whose vehemence frightened away the people they wanted most to reach and the thoughtful, dedicated women who understand that woman's status must change."

McCall's described Miss Steinem as "the movement's most persuasive evangelist ... broading the land and making converts wherever she goes."

Whale meats OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has reversed itself and given the green light for use in pet food of 2 million pounds of sperm whale meat previously embargoed because of hazardous mercury content.

The policy exception, not publicly announced, drew criticism from Mrs. Roger L. Stevens, president of the Animal Welfare Institute, who called it a "very bad precedent."

Kalcan Foods, a California firm, imported the whale meat a year and a half ago from Japan and put it on ice at a Vernon, Calif., warehouse for future use in the firm's pet food products. It makes a pet food called Kalcan and other brands as well.

But the FDA tested it this fall and found mercury content above the 0.6 parts per million level deemed hazardous. The agency seized the whale meat last month under a longstanding FDA policy declaring that products barreled from human food cannot be used in pet food either.

Last week, however, Joel R. Slosoff, special assistant to the FDA's associate commissioner for compliance, wrote Arnold and Porter, Kalcan's Washington law firm, that the whale meat could be used after all.

Slosoff stipulated that the finished pet food could contain no more than 5 percent whale meat and no more than about 1 part per million mercury. Laboratory tests confirming these restrictions must be submitted to the FDA, Slosoff said.

Slosoff's letter noted that cats "have a particular sensitivity to mercury" and asked that "to the extent possible, the food not be used for cats."

Albert called a post-session news conference to defend the record of the first session of the 92nd Congress and, by inference, his own stewardship during his first year as speaker. He has been criticized by some party members as not tough enough.

In a prepared statement he said Congress had concentrated first on "widening democracy" by reforming its own procedures, lowering the voting age to 18, and plugging campaign spending loopholes.

Secondly, he said, it concluded that Nixon's economic policies had produced complete disarray, with the cost of living up 12 per cent in two years, unemployment at a 10-year high of 6 per cent, and welfare rolls at an all-time peak.

The costs of this deliberate slowdown have been enormous," Albert said. "Far from bringing down prices as intended, administration policies produced an unprecedented combination of inflation and recession."

New satellite placed in orbit over Atlantic

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Scientists fired a rocket motor by remote control Monday and kicked the newest Intelsat 4 communications satellite into a stationary orbit 22,300 miles over the equator in the Atlantic Ocean.

The new satellite will remain in this orbit until late in January when its position will be changed slightly by small gas jets.

The Intelsat 4 was launched from Cape Kennedy Sunday night on a 29.5 million-mile mission which adds another space relay station to the network of the 80-national Intelsat consortium.

The new satellite will be States and Europe.

Speaker blasts Nixon brake on US economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speaker Carl Albert today accused President Nixon of having imposed a deliberate slowdown on the economy. He said the Democratic Congress had to prod Nixon into his current fight against inflation and unemployment.

The Oklahoma Democrat said economic prospects still are unclear but "we stand ready to take further initiatives as required to bring our economy back to full prosperity and full employment."

NEWCOMERSTOWN, Ohio (UPI) — Ron Hooker, an energetic 19-year-old college student, was sworn in as mayor of this small east central Ohio community Monday night and described his job as an "adventure."

Hooker, who has said he already has been offered bribes and jobs paying up to $28,000 a year, arrived at the ceremonies in a 1925 model-A Ford truck which he called symbolic.

"The 1920s were good years for our town and I hope the early 1970s will be just as good for us," he said.

Hooker, a junior at Ashland Community College, was elected in November as one of the youngest mayors in the nation on a platform of sincerity and clear thinking.

"When I decided to run for mayor of our town it was because I thought I could help to make our hometown grow and be a wonderful place to live," he told some 100 onlookers, family members and friends who attended.

Hooker, who has scheduled his classes three mornings a week so he can tend to his mayoral duties, was sworn in by outgoing Mayor Chester E. Sharrock in the council chambers.

"I won't tell you what to do, but I can sure tell you some things not to do," Sharrock told Hooker after he administered the oath.

Hooker, who will be paid $3,000 a year, attended the council meeting following the ceremonies but it was strictly as a bystander since he will not officially take office until Jan. 1.

Hooker said last week he was offered bribes from "capitalists and other political leaders" he would not identify and that a large corporation offered him a $28,000 a year public relations job.

Prisoner swap chances passed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two congressmen complained today that the Pentagon may be passing up opportunities to free a small number of U.S. war prisoners by exchanging them for North Vietnamese POWs.

Reps. Lucien Nedzi and James G. O'Hara, both Michigan Democrats, leveled the charge after conversations with Sgt. John Sexton, recently released by his Viet Cong captors, and with Defense Department officials responsible for overseeing the POW matters.

The lawmakers said in a joint statement the military had failed to demonstrate it learned any lessons from Sexton's experience. They chided the Pentagon for its apparent failure to follow up on the exchange idea possibilities.

In a Dec. 2 letter to Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Nedzi and O'Hara said that when Sexton was freed he carried with him the names of two North Vietnamese officers who the Viet Cong sought in return.

The lawmakers said they understood that a third officer was handed over instead because the other two could not be readily located.

Although they said they did not believe a full-scale repatriation of American prisoners would take place until there was a settlement of the war, the congressmen said "some limited success might be achieved" through the kind of

Al Westergren, Publisher

PHONE 733-0931

WASHINGTON — For the junior high pupil who has everything, there is indeed something his fond parents can give him for Christmas that will guarantee the kid will wind up as a professional rapist or block captain in a booby hatch.

It is a dirty book aimed directly at the kid, called "The Little Red Schoolbook," edited by a 23-year-old otherwise unemployed something or other named Wallace Roberts and published by Pocket Books. No parent can boast his child is really sick, sick, sick until the tad has devoured, slack-jawed into this tome.

In this lunatic country, I don't see how the book can miss. Originally published in Denmark, naturally, it already has been banned in France and confiscated by Scotland Yard in freedom-loving Great Britain. Moreover, the book is proudly described by its editor and publisher as "uninhibited and radically-flavored," which automatically assures it rave reviews by the slobbering vourous of the ultra-liberal literary set.

As for masturbation; the book in effect says it's good for you. To make sure the kid understands what he's reading, the book's treatment of sex is done in good old reliable four-letter words.

"All grownups are paper tigers," says "The Little Red Schoolbook." Right on. Every child has the inalienable right to live his own life beginning at the age of 4, doesn't he?

Yes sir, says Editor Wallace Roberts, who claims that "for so long we've overlooked kids, treating them as if they had no rights at all. I mean, they're just people who happen to be a little younger than us." (Somebody should introduce this editor to the word "we," for us in such sentences.)

Roberts, I suppose, brought impeccable credentials to his job as an instant expert on child welfare. A Dartmouth graduate, he has been an instructor at an "experimental" school, a newspaper feature writer, and associate editor of the Saturday Review. He is the father of three and lives on a Vermont farm owned by a freelance rock music critic. The farm, understandably, is un-worked.

It is difficult to review this book in a family newspaper because good taste keeps getting in the way. But to alert unsuspecting parents and even, perhaps, those mamas and papas who cling to the illusion of youth by letting their brats see and do practically everything, some description of the text seems in decent order.

For example, the chapter on sex opens with the statement that "This section says nothing about love and very little about feeling. It gives some practical information which you may find useful." I don't doubt some sprouts will find the information "useful." Few children really desire to become parents at the age of 12, and the book's advice on the selection of contraceptive devices is definitive.

At any rate, it is not surprising that Roberts has put his editorial imprimatur on a book which demands that students support teachers' strikes and indulge in classroom cheating. If you're not given the sex education you think you have a right to, says the book, "start using the bulletin board in your classroom to provide this education." With pictures?

Well, each to his own — as the French used to say before liberators already have made it perfectly clear that the act of love does not, or should not, have anything to do with old-fashioned love, or even fondness. Just go out and have yourselves a ball, boys and girls; you can't take it with you.

And, would you buy a dirty book from this man?

Political Skill

President Nixon, dealing with a Democratic Congress, has managed to get most of his legislative programs adopted despite partisan opposition especially from Senators eager to run against him in the 1972 elections.

Even Senator Mansfield, the Democratic leader from Montana, finally gave up his efforts to set a date for complete withdrawal from Southeast Asia upon North Vietnam's release of American prisoners. Congress' rush to adjourn for the holidays helped Nixon's program.

His veto of the costly and unworkable anti-poverty bill with its controversial child care centers provision stood up. His nomination of William Rehnquist to the Supreme Court was confirmed as the liberals, led by Senator Birch Bayh, D-Ind., yielded to pressure from Mansfield. All the Democratic hopefuls joined the majority with Bayh, who made no bones about wanting a liberal majority on the court. Most Senators supported Nixon's right to choose more conservative justices, just as some of his predecessors had picked liberals.

A compromise bill to extend Nixon's authority for economic controls to April 30, 1973, was approved.

In foreign affairs, President Nixon had a fruitful meeting with President Pompidou of France, reaching agreement to devalue the dollar with details to be worked out later.

The Red Chinese released two American prisoners and commuted the life sentence of another, an act lauded by the President, who had appealed on behalf of the prisoners through Henry Kissinger on his visit to Peking in July and October.

Senator Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., one of Nixon's most persistent critics, hailed the clemency as a symbol of "the emerging era of improved relations" and said Nixon "deserves the highest praise."

Nixon sometimes has adopted issues the Democrats considered their own and while there is room for honest disagreement with his programs, there can be only admiration for his political skills.

Christmas

The temptation is strong to think of Christmas as having lost its meaning, and to fear that man by his inventions and materialistic concepts has somehow smothered with tinsel the eternal verities of which the herald angels sang.

But Christmas is enduring. It is that reach for ideals beyond man's instant grasp by which the human race inches upward toward Heaven. The world is better than it was when Jesus was born. Justice and mercy were the exceptions, not the rule.

Jesus brought a new concept, dramatized by His later life on Earth. For two thousand years it has been encouraging men to promote justice, to love mercy and to resist cruelty.

It may be said that in some lands today there are injustices worse than in the Judea of the original Christmas. But there is this vital difference; the mighty leaven of the Christian ethic, the love of justice and mercy, the rights of others, the dignity of man have become so thoroughly implanted that most despots in modern times have fallen before outraged public opinion after a few years.

Christmas abides because it impels men toward higher ground, discarding their errors and woes as they climb. No tinsel can ever obscure the beautiful Christmas message which bids man to seek his destiny in the upper reaches of the spirit.

Christmas abides because it

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

The Bandwagon

WASHINGTON — The next rider to limp onto Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's accelerating bandwagon will be Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio, whose endorsement before the new year is expected to bring with it dividends of national magnitude.

Gilligan's office maintains he absolutely has come to no decision. Top Muskie operatives, fearful of publicly anticipating and thereby offending the governor, profess ignorance about the great Columbus decision. But in the upper reaches of the Muskie entourage, it is simply assumed that Jack Gilligan will soon endorse Muskie for President. That announcement will be the most powerful injection of high octane yet for the Muskie bandwagon suggesting in the eyes of many politicians, the inevitability of Muskie's nomination. Moreover, it will show how deeply Democratic party national politics has been changed by McGovern Commission reforms and how biased they are for the front-runner and against brokered conventions.

Indeed, Gilligan's endorsement of Muskie will reiterate that large blocs of uncommitted delegates going to Democratic national conventions are a relic of the past. With all of Pennsylvania and two-thirds of Illinois to be committed to specific candidates (most of them probably to Muskie), Ohio's 153 delegates are the last bloc of potentially negotiable Northern delegates.

Gilligan moved in quite an opposite direction following his election as governor in 1970. To prevent Ohio from being a bloody battleground of contesting Democratic candidates, he put himself forward as a favorite son candidate. He was encouraged in that desire by Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who had clashed with Gilligan over the peace plank at the 1968 convention. Now, Daley told Gilligan, Illinois and Ohio might well control the balance of power at Miami Beach.

But just as Daley today seems likely to control only one-third of the Illinois delegation because of the McGovern Commission reforms, the new era of reform militates against Gilligan entering the convention with 153 delegates in his pocket.

Nor did Gilligan, a reformer at heart, ever really have that in mind. He wanted a genuinely uncommitted Ohio delegation to travel to Miami Beach, there to be wooed by all the candidates, but not controlled by the governor.

In fact, it is doubtful whether a controllable delegation could be selected under new state rules tailored to McGovern Commission standards. These provide for selection of delegate candidates through mass meetings. Party regulars fear this procedure would result in selection of uncommitted as a professional rapist or block captain in a booby hatch.

About Lice

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can I do about crab lice? Is there anything I can get without prescription to kill them and the eggs? I've been using an ammonia cleaning solution diluted in water. Is this doing any good? Please help. — D. M. G.

It may seem strange in this age of presumed social advancement that lice should be a problem, but they are: head lice, body lice, crab lice (which prefer the genital region).

When you ask what to use to get rid of them, I'll give the answer physicians find reliable: a combination of ingredients called Kwell (the long scientific name doesn't matter).

But it is a prescription item. The law so specifies, so you'll have to have a prescription to get it. And that's what I advise you to do. (It comes in lotion or shampoo form, may require a second application, but should not be overused.)

There are other lotions available without prescription, and pharmacists have told me that apparently results are quite good, but they cannot, under the law, dispense certain of the medications that are in Kwell, so my advice is to use the same trouble all over again. There is no home remedy I know of which will kill all the eggs. Just plain washing won't begin to get rid of them.

The medical literature already contains reports of lice becoming of epidemic proportions in some areas. Since lice are spread mainly by direct contact, person to person, the so-called "hippie communes" are thought to be an important factor. Living in close quarters, if one person brings lice into the group, pretty soon others in the group get them, too. Here and there, contact with people outside the group spreads the lice still farther.

I checked with a pharmacy in what we think of as a "nice neighborhood" the other day, and was told that in the last few months they had sold more dousing medication than they formerly had in years.

Comeback Comment

A note from Elizabeth M. Reilly of Kimberly was sent to our attention. She pointed out that, in a recent column, we stated "the railroads were trying for that big comeback" by borrowing a competitor's star attraction — the stewardess.

She writes:

I do not know your age but in 1938 I traveled from St. Louis, Mo., to Denver, to San Francisco and then to Los Angeles. There was a cute stewardess on that train. She had a clipboard with everyone's name and address. And this was in a coach.

This stewardess visited every passenger, brought FREE pillows as needed, etc. Thought you'd like to know that it was, really the airlines who "borrowed."

And to Mrs. Reilly we must say when it comes to that "don't know your age bit" — that we well remember the day. We had just

Soviet Achilles

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Up to now, the Soviet Union has rather successfully promoted its own interests in the world's trouble spots by backing

whichever party in a revolution or war was best suited to assist

Soviet ambitions:

The Arabs against Israel and the revolutionaries in Yemen, for access to oil, and for influence in the Mediterranean, Suez, Red Sea and the Persian Gulf.

India against Pakistan for influence in the Indian subcontinent and in the Indian Ocean area to advance Moscow's programs for the encirclement of mainland China.

North Korea against South Korea to open up secure shipping and naval access and exit routes for its Siberian ports, and to bring pressures on Japan.

There are signs that this Soviet policy of working through "client states" or "proxies" may now come a cropper — or at places, in the Middle East where Moscow has been particularly successful these past several years. The Russians may have been too clever.

It may seem quixotic to talk of Russian failure in an area where Moscow policymakers seem to hold most of the high cards and seem consistently to take the big poker pots.

But buried in a study made for the Pentagon by the Research Analysis Corporation is an analysis of the very difficult problems the Soviet Union now faces in the Persian Gulf/Middle East area, precisely as a

Saudi Arabia opposes the spread of Arab nationalism

under the control and direction of Cairo . . . Moscow could get caught in the crossfire.

Antagonisms between Egypt and Iran over the expansion of Iranian influence in the Persian Gulf might force the Soviet Union to take sides to the detriment of its relations with one or both states . . .

The Persian Gulf is "balkanized" Fraternal and tribal rivalries offer innumerable opportunities for Soviet exploitation and gain. But these opportunities are offset by the fluid nature of the situation and the prospect of becoming involved in small conflicts that would erode any Soviet gains in the area. The greater the degree of involvement of the Soviet Union in the various disputes . . . the greater the risk of incurring diminishing political returns . . .

Whichever choices the Soviet Union makes, whichever side or sides it chooses in the Persian Gulf, it does so realizing that it stands to undermine its policy in other areas of the Middle East . . .

Minidoka district reelects chairman

RUPERT — The Minidoka Soil and Water Conservation District elected Howard Icenible for another term as chairman of the board of supervisors.

Others elected were H. A. Harrison, vice-chairman; Bernard Scott, treasurer, and Jake Bally, secretary.

During the business meeting Mr. Harrison reported on the new plants made available from the Plant Materials Center, Aberdeen, including improved grasses. The center is now in the process of developing shrubs for this area.

Vern Hacking, SCS official reported on the number of man hours and services given by the service made during the local office in the past five years. Services have increased even though there is less manpower available to the SCS, and the past five years. Services have increased even though there is less manpower available to the SCS, and the budget have been reduced.

A quarterly report prepared by Hacking showed that 45 operators, were given service for the first time during the fall quarter, but a total of 140 services of all kinds were given. A total of 21 new applications for cost-sharing assistance were received, and 113 applications for fall construction. There was a total of 211 applications for program year.

It was announced that Ray Bott, who worked part time in the Rupert and Burley offices for past six years will now spend all his time in the Burley office. Jack Palmer, another temporary employee will now work fulltime in the Rupert office. Harold Parton has been hired and will divide his time between the Burley and Rupert offices. Efforts are continuing to assist a group in the Acreage area to install a group sprinkler system, reports Hacking.

Programs for 1972 were discussed. Committee appointments and duties will be made at the January meeting.

Bill Ross, an SCS official also was in attendance at the meeting.

Cassia campaign being organized

BURLEY — The Cassia County March of Dimes campaign is being organized by James G. James, Idaho state chairman for voluntary health organizations.

He is being assisted by Gene Sorenson, local chapter chairman.

Others assisting with the planning of the campaign for January are Mrs. LeRae Azzon, Mother's March chairman, and Mrs. Kathryn Barry, maller chairman.

"Birth defects are forever, unless you help," is the message the volunteer workers are using this year in the annual March of Dimes Campaign.

Sorenson is the new local chapter chairman and is replacing Gary Lee who has held the post for some time.

Arnold Palmer, outstanding golf figure, is serving the nation as honorary national chairman of the January fund drive for March of Dimes.

Mrs. Barry reported the Jay-C-Ettes have prepared the business maller in preparation for the campaign.

"Birth defects are everyone's concern," stated Mr. James, "because they strike nearly a quarter of a million infants each year. Science has taken manifold steps in recent years to control and even prevent lifelong damage to newborns. We still face a stiff fight against congenital handicaps."

Funds raised in the March of Dimes drive provide help for more than 100 medical service programs across the country. Throughout the year, the voluntary health organization supports research, care, education and community service projects.

Notable volunteer efforts have been launched for rubella immunization drives with health departments, and medical societies with the backing of the March of Dimes.

Car slams kids singing carols

BOYD, Tex. (UPI)—A car plowed into a group of children singing Christmas carols outside a church late Sunday, killing a 9-year-old girl. Seven other children and a 10-year-old girl were injured.

"They were scattered all over the ditch," said the Rev. R. L. Swanner, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church in this town of less than 700 persons in Wise County, north of Fort Worth.

The group of about 25 children was standing between the church and Highway 114, and some were near the shoulder of the highway. They planned to sing carols for about half an hour after a church service.

"It happened so quick," Swanner said. "The adult leaders had just warned them to get over to the side of the road and line up in single file. They were just off the highway when they were hit.

"This fellow came around, trying to go around a car, and ran into them," he said.

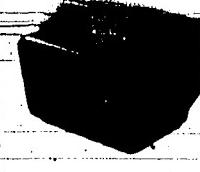

"I could hear the impact and heard the cries of the children screaming," Swanner said.

Carolyn Irene Blevins, 9, was killed. The others hospitalized were Susan Pitts, 10, Janet Gwen Hatley, 9, Barry Arrington, 10, and his sister, Robyn, 11, Scotty Boyd Hightower, 8, Tanya Brantlett, 10, James L. Davis, 12, and his brother, Terry Davis, 9.

Department of Public Safety (DPA) officers said the driver of the car, who was 19, was questioned and released.

Idaho welfare policy said same as court ruling

TWIN FALLS — A U.S. Supreme Court ruling announced Monday requiring states to provide the same welfare payments for all youth under 21 whether they attend college or a trade school would not vary from present policy in Idaho, David Humphrey, Department of Public Assistance, said here.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled on an Illinois test case, saying the dependent children through 20 years of age, in a family receiving welfare benefits, are eligible for assistance if attending a college or university. In Illinois and some other states, only those in high school, trade or technical schools have been considered eligible.

Humphrey said Idaho adheres strictly to the federal regulation and has made it a policy to grant assistance to all such children under 21 years of age, and to follow closely other federal funding guidelines.

The high court said all persons eligible under the Social Security Act are eligible for federal welfare funds administered through the states.

The federal Social Security provision allows assistance for needy youths between 18 and 20 who are full-time students at a college or university. But the Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) has interpreted the law merely as a broad definition of those for whom the federal government is willing to make matching payments.

The case thus raised a question as to the basic standards applied by HEW in approving state programs for dependent children and other public assistance programs.

The challenge of the Illinois law was brought to the high court by Georgia Townsend and Loverta Alexander of Chicago, whose children attended junior colleges.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr., in delivering the unanimous decision, noted that Illinois State officials claimed that Congress authorized states to vary eligibility requirements from federal standards.

"Our examination of the legislative history has uncovered no evidence that Congress granted the asserted authority," Brennan declared. "On the contrary, we are persuaded that the history supports the conclusion that Congress meant to continue financial assistance for AFDC programs for the age group only in states that conformed their eligibility requirements to the federal eligibility standards."

"There is no legislative history," Brennan added, "to support the proposition that Congress also gave to the individual states an option to tailor eligibility standards within the age group, and thus exclude children eligible under the federal standards."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said in a separate concurring opinion that in some instances "Congress has used the power of the purse to encourage states to adhere to its wishes to a certain extent."

But he said state participation under the Social Security Act was not mandatory and the only question to be considered was "whether the state has indeed adhered to the provisions and is accordingly entitled to utilize federal funds in support of its program. I agree that the answer to that inquiry in this case must be in the negative."

CSI board OK's pacts

By LEE TREMAINE
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Trustees of the College of Southern Idaho approved contracts with several new faculty members during a brief board meeting Monday night.

On recommendation of CSI President James L. Taylor, the trustees approved contracts with Tom Blake as a graphic arts specialist in the vocational division; Mrs. Phyllis Amodt and Carol Smith in the vocational "business cluster"; Marilee Sackett-Kohls as a counselor in a new program in which her salary will be paid by a federal grant, and Prentiss Jones in the custodial department.

The trustees also accepted the resignation of Eugene Turner from the custodial department.

In other business, Dr. Taylor said the Scottish Rite Bodies of Boise have collected $175 for donation to the James H. Shields Memorial Funds, in honor of the late "founding father" of CSI, who was one of the original trustees. The fund now has about $500 available for scholarships, Dr. Taylor said.

The new vocational-technical building is about 72 per cent complete in 88 per cent of the contract time, with work proceeding on schedule inside the building.

A delegation from the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, from the Seattle regional office, inspected the new physical education building, including the gymnasium, earlier this month to check on completion, Dr. Taylor said. All that remains is to complete final payments on the project.

Representatives of Idaho's two junior colleges, CSI and North Idaho College, will appear before a legislative committee headed by John Andreason on Jan. 6, 1972, to discuss funding proposals to put before the Idaho Legislator, Dr. Taylor said. He suggested trustees of both institutions meet with their area legislators at a joint luncheon in Boise to discuss problems common to both.

State administrative and legislative auditors are "thinking of having political subdivisions" such as junior colleges come under either the legislative or administrative audit, "as do other political entities," Dr. Taylor said. He indicated he doubted the advisability of such a procedure, but did not go into the details.

Dr. Taylor said a problem had arisen with "overselling of the house" by groups renting the Fine Arts Auditorium or CSI gymnasium for evening performances. The "standing-room-only" situation could violate fire department regulations, and create a problem with seating. In that college maintenance personnel have to rustle extra chairs from "all over the campus."

"In the future, we will insist that there be no overselling," Dr. Taylor said.

Scholarships were approved for Scott Jensen, a $100 music scholarship, to be applied at the rate of $50 per semester for two semesters; Thomas Kuju, and Joseph H. Priest, educational trust loans of $50 and $200, respectively, and Mike Batt, a "scholarship" of $301.37 to allow his participation in the "Up With People" program.

Business Manager H. W. Van Slyke said Batt is one of three CSI students planning to join the traveling "Up With People" show in January, but he has an "obligation" of $301.37 to the college which must be paid before he would be free to leave.

Air quality hearings set

BOISE (UPI) — Robert L. Montgomery, chairman of the Idaho Air Pollution Control Commission, announced Monday a series of public meetings and a formal hearing on the implementation of new national air quality standards.

Hearings to discuss the proposed standards will be in Pocatello, Jan. 6 at 1 p.m., in the Idaho State University Student Union Building and at 7 p.m. in the court house basement; in Coeur d'Alene Jan. 11, at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the Elks Building; and in Boise Jan. 13, at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. in room 420 of the statehouse.

A formal hearing on the proposal will be held Jan. 18 at 9 a.m. in room 420 of the statehouse.

Copies of the implementation plan are available for public review at the North Idaho College Library, University of Idaho Library, College of Southern Idaho Library, Idaho State University Library and Boise State College Library.

Al Eiguren, director of the Air Pollution Control Commission, said the plan includes an air pollution emergency plan, air quality standards, and regulations for the control of fugitive dust, and control of odors, incinerators, motor vehicle emissions, open burning, wiggum burners and rendering plants.

"We feel, therefore, and respectfully submit, that it would be improper for us to allow any type of intrusion of the legislative chamber by the executive or judicial branches, except where historical precedence allows."

Speakers denied offices

BOISE (UPI) — Now that the smoke has cleared, it appears neither the office of the governor nor the office of administrative services will be equipped this year with speakers from both houses of the legislature.

Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy and Rep. William J. Lanting, Twin Falls, speaker of the House, cited the historic separation of government powers when turning down the request.

It seems Edward V. Williams, administrative assistant to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and former minority leader in the Idaho House, asked Myron Schlechte, director of the Legislative Council, for speakers to be placed in the governor's office and the office of administrative services.

Schlechte apparently told Williams permission for the speakers would have to be obtained from Lanting, so Williams made a formal request to Lanting.

In the letter of request, Williams said the speakers which would allow listeners to follow the action in both chambers were "imperative" to the office of the governor and to Robert Lenighan, acting director of administrative services, "if we are to properly fulfill the relationship that exists between the legislative and the executive branches of government."

In response, Lanting and Murphy — who is president of the senate — said they feel it would be "improper" to install the loudspeakers.

The letter said there is an historic separation of the executive, judicial and legislative branches of government.

"We feel, therefore, and respectfully submit, that it would be improper for us to allow any type of intrusion of the legislative chamber by the executive or judicial branches, except where historical precedence allows."

Hospital officials said the child was admitted five days ago and doctors decided surgery would be necessary to remove a particle of the glass ornament which had lodged in the lung.

The child is expected to remain in the hospital several more days.

SV council OK's Elkhorn concept

"It is a real benefit to the city to have it at this time," he said. Councilman James Patterson said "It's hard to disapprove it, we have no zoning to affect it."

Nelson said the council may want to have in the future the common use zone, an area encompassing about 70 per cent of the 2,300-acre site, be declared a recreation zone. This move would prevent "a new developer coming in and ending up with a sprawl," he said.

After the meeting Lynch said during 1972 — the first phase in the 10-year project — about $6 million in construction will be completed. About 85 studio apartments and 45 town house condominiums, in addition to about half of the buildings in the planned Elkhorn village, will be erected.

Ski lifts connecting Elkhorn with Dollar Mountain, will be built by the Sun Valley Co. at no cost to the developer, he said. The lift is scheduled for completion by the 1972-73 winter season.

He said the golf course, scheduled for completion by 1974, will cost between $35,000 and $1 million and will be contained in the $6 million development phase.

In other action, the council formally annexed 400 acres, part of the Elkhorn development, into the city. Councilmen had approved the move during its November meeting and requested Nelson to draw up an ordinance.

The land was purchased in early November by Elkhorn of Sun Valley from the Sun Valley Land Co. The purchase price was $212,000, averaging $530 per acre.

Racial issues remain

BLUE LAKES SHOPPING CENTER

Tuesday, December 21, 1971 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The real problem is while people assume the drama and success of the civil rights movement of the sixties was such that the 1970s meant the issue would be over."

"The fact is we took care only of the peripheral issues. It's like tearing down the walls — now the problem is trying to get through the debris. It's hard and it's dusty and it's cloudy and it's smoky..."

The phone rang and Vernon E. Jordan Jr. answered it. At 36 he is one of the country's fastest rising black leaders, a man who for the past 10 years has spent most of his time fighting civil rights legal battles.

On Jan. 1 he assumes the toughest job of his career: successor-to-the-late-Whitney Young as the executive director of the Urban League.

Jordan is a huge man, about six-foot-four of linebacker proportions who first gained national attention in 1961 when, as a recent law school graduate, he led Charlayne Hunter into the University of Georgia through a mob of white protesters.

In the course of an interview he summed up where black Americans stand in the early 1970s, a position he believes faces growing white resistance around the country. His voice betrayed no bitterness, but it was obvious that he was struggling to speak calmly.

"I think Lester Maddox was right," he said. "In 1960 when he ran for mayor of Atlanta he said integration was for poor blacks and poor whites, and that as soon as people in the north found that out and understood it they would feel just as he did about racial integration and black people."

"Now that the issue is really being put to all people all over this country, the (white) people are backing up. Some of them are saying 'we didn't mean it.' That as long as it was billy clubs and fire hoses and marches from Selma to Montgomery that it was all right — for down yonder. But now it's all over the country and it sort of takes on a different character."

Asked what he thought of the government's stance-on-black problems, Jordan answered with a broadside against the politics of white resistance.

"Black people have not been a major priority of this administration," he said. "But I think that's reflective of the attitude of the country—that black needs and black aspirations have been put on the back burner. It's reflected in the attitude of northern mayors responding to the popular will of the people."

"Long-time champions of civil rights voted for the antibusing amendment in Congress. Do their safe seats in Congress mean more to them than the dignity and equality of black children? And whenever there's that choice, American politics are pretty clear. People choose on the side of enlightened self interest, and I think that's what the Congress has done."

"I think that the 1972 elections will be geared to not rocking the boat on issues of race. I think the candidates will be walking a tightrope on the issue of busing and that if public sentiment is as high as it is in some areas we're going to have an antibusing attitude in this country."

"We wouldn't even have to deal with a busing problem if people would integrate, the suburbs and integrate neighborhoods and deal with quality education. Busing is not a new phenomenon in this country. It is only a phenomenon because it involves black kids going to school with white kids. And the problem with black kids in this country is that they haven't had much of a choice about anything..."

Jordan was particularly critical of Phase II of the administration's economic game plan, claiming that the various boards are "elitist."

"There are no black people; with the exception of one man serving on the Pay Board," he said. "The interests of not only black people but poor people and unorganized workers have not been protected."

13 rapid-fire blasts rip Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A series of 13 rapid-fire explosions smashed offices and shops in Belfast Monday, stampeding Christmas shoppers "miraculously" but causing few injuries.

An army spokesman said seven persons, including one policeman, suffered minor wounds.

The explosions occurred within a 30-minute period, and seven of them went off downtown like a chain of fireworks in streets and stores.

packed with shoppers.

"The number of injured has quite miraculously been small," the spokesman said. "It appears warning was given in each of the explosions, giving people time to get out of the way."

Police sources attributed the blasts to the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), which has taken public responsibility for most of the violence here in the name of forceful unification of Northern Ireland's six counties with the largely Roman Catholic Irish Republic to the south.

The IRA has vowed to reduce downtown Belfast to "a pile of rubble" by Christmas in retaliation for alleged brutality by British troops toward men arrested and imprisoned as suspected IRA members.

Other blasts in the half-hour period heavily damaged an antique shop, an automobile showroom, a furniture store, a cafe and part of the Sun Alliance Building, housing the offices of an insurance firm.

The explosions occurred between 10:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. (5:30 p.m. EST).

The army spokesman said two bombs exploded at the front and rear of a television rental firm office in Linenhall Street, only a few hundred feet from City Hall. Flames engulfed the block, but firemen extinguished them.

One of the blasts outside the City Center was at the Conway Hotel, rated one of Northern Ireland's most luxurious and popular with British politicians.

Damage was light, police said, and there were no injuries there.

The army spokesman said at least three other bombs were placed in the downtown area during the mid-morning commotion, but they failed to explode and were later defused by military demolition experts.

The latest person to die was a 16-year-old girl, killed when the ice cream wagon in which she was riding rammed a British army armored car early Monday.

Hanrahan off ticket

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cook County State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan, under indictment on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice in the Chicago Black Panther case, was removed from the Cook County Democratic Party slate, Mayor Richard J. Daley announced Monday.

Daley said Hanrahan, slated recently by party leaders for re-election, would be replaced on the ticket by Judge Raymond K. Berg of the traffic court.

"Ray Berg is the next state's attorney of Cook County," Daley said.

The removal of Hanrahan's name from the party slate came in the face of extremely strong protests from black leaders and liberal Democrats, who said running Hanrahan for state's attorney in 1972 was ill-advised and wrong in the face of the charges against him.

"We felt it wasn't in the best interests of all the people of the community," Daley said, adding that a decision last week by the Illinois Supreme Court forbidding questioning by Hanrahan's attorneys of the grand jurors who returned the indictments against Hanrahan and 13 other persons "had much effect."

Reds down 5 war jets

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. command announced today that five U.S. F4 Phantoms were shot down this weekend over Indochina, one of them over North Vietnam by a missile and the others over Laos as they attacked the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The command said the two-man crew of the Phantom shot down over North Vietnam Friday was rescued and its loss reported the same day. It said three more were shot down Saturday over Laos, a fifth downed on Sunday. Four men were rescued and 10 were missing.

North Vietnam reported four Phantoms were shot down over North Vietnam Friday and Saturday. Today its delegation to the Paris peace talks released the names of four American fliers it said appeared at a Hanoi news conference.

Vietnamese Foreign Ministry press department, said President Nixon has "nearly proclaimed" that he was seeking every way to secure the release of American prisoners of war but in reality his actions completely contradict his declarations."

The statement called the raid "an extremely grave act of war ... (and) an insolent challenge in the face of American and world opinion."

Announcement that five jets had been shot down followed an earlier report by the U.S. command that American planes had carried out a successful strike against a radar site only 90 miles from Hanoi, the deepest American air attack in more than a year.

The Communists listed the names of the American pilots:

Lt. Kenneth Roth Wells, 24, I.D. No. 635,489,694 captured at Hanoi Bo in Quang Ninh province northeast of Hanoi.

Maj. Leland Lewis Hildebrand, 33, I.D. 391,369,024, also shot down at Hanoi Bo.

Lt. Samuel Richard Vaughan, 26, I.D. 249,727,237, shot down at Tan Lac in Hoa Binh province west of Hanoi.

Maj. Kenneth Richard Johnson, 33, I.D. 470,406,482, also shot down at Tan Lac.

No hometowns were released.

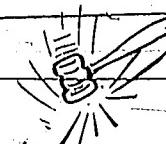

At least one of the Phantoms was reported shot down by a Soviet-build MiG21, the others by missile and antiaircraft fire.

Reports five more jets were downed brought to six the number announced shot down within nine days. An F105 was shot down by a missile on Dec. 10 and its two crewmen rescued.

In Saigon, President Nguyen Van Thieu announced South Vietnamese troops would observe one-day cease-fires for Christmas, New Year's day and the lunar New Year holiday, Tet.

The American air attack in North Vietnam was the deepest U.S. strike into the Communist country in 13 months, the U.S. command said today.

Suez year peaceful—but can it last?

Mideast Fearful of New War
1971 has been a year of relative peace in the Middle East, but can it last? Here are reports from both sides.

By GERARD LOUGHREAN

BEIRUT (UPI) —Under the Christmas lights on fashionable Rue Hamra, the little knot of Arab newsmen drank cup after cup of bitter Turkish coffee and talked politics in somber mood.

"You can be certain of this," said one. "Things are going to get worse before they get better."

His companions clicked their worry beads and nodded in assent.

Arabs, not famed for their ability to agree, are remarkably united in one thing—the belief that another round of fighting with Israel is inevitable.

This comes during the most peaceful period in the 22-year modern history of Arab-Israeli conflict. The fact has been obscured by saber-rattling from Cairo and a history of failed peace attempts. But because of the Suez Canal ceasefire, 1971 has been the only period since 1948 when Arabs and Israelis have not persistently traded fire over their common frontiers.

If 1971 has been a year of peace, 1972 could be a year of war, but also settlement.

The belief in Arab circles is that President

Anwar Sadat of Egypt means precisely what he says when he threatens to go to war.

It is generally thought the Egyptian leader is seeking to involve the Soviets in his power play. This would bring in the United States and raise the specter of a confrontation between the nuclear powers. Then the two giants will get together and impose a settlement.

That at least is the theory, though it takes no account of Israel's own intentions.

The hardest line still comes from the Palestinian guerrillas.

About Khaled, a 28-year-old member of the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), describes himself as "married to the revolution."

He said: "The silence of 1971 will not continue. We guerrillas have been going through a period of rebuilding and evaluating. We will start again with renewed energy. We know the battle will not last a day or a year or five years; but we insist on fighting to liberate our land and create a new Arab personality."

TEL AVIV (UPI) —For Israel another year of "almost peace" has—while not diminishing fears of another war with the Arab world—brought a stronger focus on homefront problems. And the problems do not seem about to go away.

in 1972.

"The danger of internal division," Prime Minister Golda Meir has warned her nation, "is sharper than the enemies who surround us."

Much of the trouble is the rapid pace of this 23-year-old nation's development from a rural to an urban society based on technology. Instead of vegetables.

To his dismay, the Israeli breadwinner has seen large chunks of his salary eaten away by a tax structure that takes up to half of the average wage earner's $350 monthly paycheck, triples the price of a car and demands $145 travel tax before he can leave on a foreign vacation.

This contributed to a growing unrest among doctors, customs workers, telephone technicians, dock workers and thousands of others who went on strike in mostly unsuccessful efforts to improve their financial plight.

Most of the money withheld from Israelis went for defense. Even with a semblance of peace, preparations go on for the eventuality of another war. Israel was reported by foreign sources to be spending millions to develop its own fighter-bomber and assault missiles.

The heavy military spending was necessary, Israelis were told, so that the country one day would not have to depend on the United States to decide whether or not it should have more planes—major point of controversy between the two countries.

Nevertheless, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan came under pressure to cut back an annual defense budget of $1.5 billion. He cited the rise in Middle East tension at year's end to fend off the would-be budget trimmers.

Most Israelis were reluctant to argue, even if hikes in the prices of meat, bread, gasoline, cigarettes and luxury goods pushed the consumer price index past the 120 mark from its 100 base of 100. For survival costs money, too.

Given time, and lasting peace, Israel undoubtedly will solve such domestic problems. It is difficult, however, in a nation that believes war may strike at any moment.

Diplomats expect new Israeli move

By United Press International
Reopening the Suez Canal

Diplomatic sources are predicting that Israel will make a move in the coming weeks to revive the American efforts to get an interim agreement between Israel and Egypt for the reopening of the Suez Canal.

Israel has under consideration a more flexible attitude on the question of withdrawing its troops from part of the Sinai peninsula which it occupied during the 1967 war. This not because of American pressure but because it believes that the present dangerous deadlock could push Egyptian President Anwar Sadat over the brink of war.

Israeli thinking is that the Suez Canal zone should be a demilitarized area on both sides of the water. The Israelis believe the Soviet Union could persuade the Egyptians to accept this.

French Dismay with Soviets

French government officials are not trying to conceal their dismay over the fact that the Soviet Union has not kept them informed regularly about its moves in the conflict between India and Pakistan in which the Russians were the chief supporters of India. Only a few weeks ago the Soviet Communist party leader, Leonid I. Brezhnev, and French President Georges Pompidou signed a declaration during Brezhnev's visit to Paris that the two countries would consult closely on world affairs.

Agreement On Berlin

In the West German capital of Bonn, it appears unlikely that the four-power agreement on the future of Berlin will go into effect until around next May.

The recent completion of agreements between East and West Germany on traffic arrangements and the rights of West-Berliners to go to the East meant that the four-power agreement needed only the signatures of the Big Four ambassadors on the final protocol.

However, the Russians are demanding that the West German Parliament first ratify its 1970 treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland, recognizing the postwar boundaries of Europe, before they sign the protocol. Chancellor Willy Brandt hopes to get the ratification process completed by late April or early May.

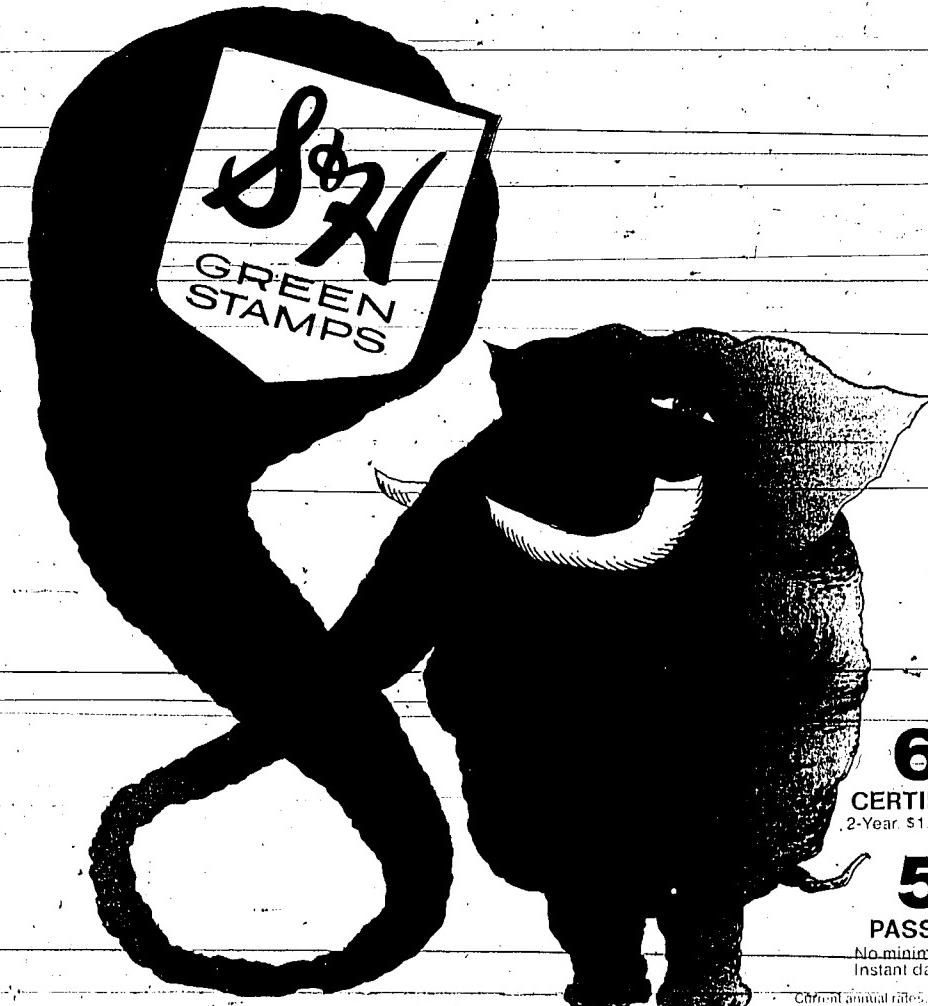

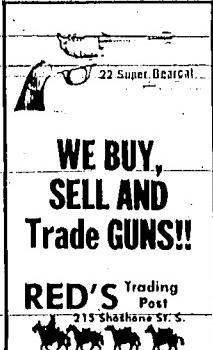

Aide pushes foot through ceiling

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI)—A U.S. Secret Service agent, inspecting President Nixon's quarters in the governor's mansion last week, accidentally put his foot through the ceiling of the President's bathroom while searching the rafters, it was learned Monday.

The incident occurred on Thursday, so there was plenty of time to repair the damage before Nixon arrived Monday for his two-day summit meeting with British Prime Minister Edward Heath.

A well-placed Bermuda source reported that "the agent came to us and said, 'I'm terribly sorry but I seem to have put my foot in it.' In no time there were swarms of DPW (Department of Public Works) men to make repairs."

Sheep shearing by pill method

MOSCOW — "This could be a good bet for the farm flock owner, especially if he has trouble finding shearers. But I can't see it for the range operator."

That's how Dr. T. Donald Bell sums up his experiences this spring with the so-called chemical shearing method, using the experimental chemical cyclophosphamide (CPA).

The University of Idaho animal scientist field-tested CPA with University sheep in cooperation with USDA scientists who pioneered the chemical shearing method at Beltsville, Maryland, a few years ago.

CPA, still available only for research purposes, comes in pill form and is administered orally with a balling gun. Within the body, the chemical interferes with normal wool growth, constricting the wool fiber as it is formed. As the wool grows, the constricted and weakened part comes to the skin surface. It can be easily broken off or "sheared" by hand.

And the chemical does work, Bell discovered. In one of his three experimental groups, the wool was ready to pull in 8 to 10 days after CPA was administered. It came off cleanly, leaving about one-eighth inch of growth to protect the skin. This group was fed a normal dosage, 9 mg per pound of body weight.

CPA didn't work so well with two other groups. In one, fed a light dosage of 6.82 mg per pound body weight, the wool came loose only in patches. Several of the sheep had to be sheared by machine.

And in the third group, given a heavy dosage of CPA (11.36 mg per pound body weight), the sheep reacted like chickens in molt. Some lost their fleece within 6 days, scattering wool around the lot wherever they walked.

"The trial demonstrated that sheep react differently to the chemical," Bell said. "We found variation even within groups. I suspect that age of the sheep and fat differences may cause some of this, and we're sure that the amount of CPA you feed is critical thing."

Another problem is that CPA-fed sheep in the trial were almost completely bald after the wool was pulled. They were sunburned and cold at the same time. This was less a problem with the medium-dosage group. These sheep had some wool remaining after pulling and had about one-fourth inch regrowth after 42 days, enough to protect them from the elements. But some ewes in group three, the heavy dosage group, were still bare after 42 days.

The Idaho trial revealed another problem that hadn't been reported by other scientists, Bell said. Regrowth wool in the Suffolks came in black.

"We know this happens with Suffolks when they rub off their wool, for example. But we surely didn't know it would happen with chemical shearing. With Hampshires, we had no problem this way."

The main advantage of chemical shearing over conventional shearing lies in wool quality.

"The wool is beautiful," Bell said. "It has uniform fiber length with none of the short fibers that you will have with machine shearing. It seems smoother—with more oil throughout the fleece."

The chemical apparently does not affect pregnant ewes or their lambs. Long-run effects on breeding and fertility are still to be determined. So is the economics of using CPA.

What is the potential, for chemical shearing? It's too early to say, but Bell suspects it will have only limited value for the range operator.

"Our trial indicates that you have to watch the sheep closely since the chemical doesn't work the same in each individual," he said. "This means the range man would have to keep his sheep confined at a time when he normally has them out on the range. That isn't practical."

Land selected

BOISE (UPI) — A legislative advisory committee approved proposed selection Friday of 11,000 acres of land in northern Idaho — part of the state's in lieu land selection.

Lt. Gov. Jack M. Murphy outlined for the legislative advisory group some 15,662 acres of Bureau of Land Management lands near Orofino, St. Maries and Sandpoint. The land is part of nearly 37,000 due Idaho to replace lands taken for National Forests and Bureau of Reclamation projects.

Murphy said the advisory group asked him to hold 4,500 acres in abeyance pending further information on some other lands in the area.

Murphy will discuss the proposed 11,000 acres next Wednesday with a subcommittee of the State Land Board.

Earlier, Murphy proposed selection of about 12,000 acres in the Island Park and Henry's Lake area of eastern Idaho and was authorized by the State Land Board to begin preliminary negotiations.

European youth idea usually Marxism

Editor's note: Mehmed Husich is a 19-year-old exchange student from Yugoslavia who is currently a CSI student while living with Mr. and Mrs. Matt Smith, Twin Falls. In the following series of articles, he offers his observations on some of the differences between the American way of life and that of his native country.

When about six years ago a famous French movie director of the young generation, Jean Lick Godur, in his film "Male-female" said, "We are children of Marx and Coca-Cola," there were many protests in the right political party, but it was a signal that youth once more had new ideas. Young people wished to find a way all people could be the same.

In 1965 it was the idea of only a few young people in Europe's capitalistic countries. But by 1968 those few people started to have their groups in almost all of Europe's big towns. These ideas were usually based on Marxism.

In 1967 the groups continued to grow, and their meetings were most important. Politicians, and especially police started to pay more attention to them, and meetings had to become secret and limited.

1968 in Paris barricades, the same as in the time of Paris communards or French bureaucracy revolution. The most famous, and oldest college Sorbonne is empty. Students are on the street, demonstration on every side, everywhere revolutionary songs and banners. Young people want all people to have a chance, better life for workers, prices down, more democracy and freedom. At first Rudy Ducke and a few other students are the leaders of the revolts.

Thousands and thousands more students are on the street. The government consents to a few of the student demands, but its situation is the same. After one month conditions are a little better. Rudy Ducke is ordered to leave France.

Like the fire which the wind spreads on all sides, this fire starts in almost every capitalistic country in Europe. In London the picture is the same as in Paris, but in England protests start in little towns, too. You can't walk in Berlin. The Berlin wall is the target for youthful protest. In Stockholm, they protest with a sex orgie.

In Italy students are not alone. Joining them are striking workers. The Communist party in Italy is stronger than in any other capitalist country in Europe. In Spain and Portugal students are killed. Police are not enough, armless are called to try to control the mobs.

A few months later, the same situation occurs in the USA. As vividly shown in movies like "Strawberry Statement" and "Point Zabinski," which tell of campus strikes; then demonstrations here were bloody, too. The best example is the tragedy at Kent State. The best explanation for this in your country is found in the book "Without Marx or Jesus New American Revolution Begun," by one Professor Revel of the University of California.

In countries of the Warsaw pact everything looks peaceful, but very soon an incident with Czechoslovakia occurs. Russia's army goes in to Prague.

Young people in Yugoslavia want to travel to countries of western Europe to explain ideas of Communism, democracy, freedom and equality, but with hundreds of others I was Yugoslavian Government felt since an international incident might spring from such exchange.

Travel was discouraged. I was by accident in Paris at the time of student demonstrations and with hundreds of others I was imprisoned—my time being three days.

Today the situation is calmer. Protest are not frequent, but sometimes they happen. In countries of western Europe young people now have more freedom for themselves and for laborers. About two years ago in a Paris extremists cults, such as Maoist and OAS, sprung up, but they weren't popular, and did not last long. And what of Rudy Ducke? He lived in London, where he was a movie star, and drove a Jaguar. Because of his affluence young people lost faith in him. About three months ago the English Government said he could live no longer in England, the French Government refused to let him return to France. Now think that same situation isn't in London, Stockholm, Vienna, Belgrade or Los Angeles.

In Europe young people usually agree with communistic ideas, and from day to day they talk about ideas of modern philosophers, writers and political men, Marx, Engels, Lenin, Tito, Lukach, Russel, Sartre, Camus, Revol, Ghandi, Freud, Marcuse, with students San-Jermain-d'Ypres, Monmartre, and on the left side of the river Seine.

All night long the streets are alive, with people, but don't think that same situation isn't in Andre COLD DUCK HOUR 5 to 7 p.m. Daily Holiday Inn

CSI ends semester Thursday

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho students will wind up their first semester work this week with four days of final examinations.

Classes will be dismissed Thursday afternoon for a three-week-between-semester break.

Registration for the second semester will be completed Jan. 13 and 14, with classes scheduled to start on Monday, Jan. 17.

Highlighting this week's activities on the CSI campus will be the Christmas concert of the Twin Falls High School music department, at 8 p.m. Monday in the Fine Arts auditorium. The concert was postponed on Thursday when Twin Falls schools closed due to the flu.

CSI students are invited to a post-Christmas dance on Dec. 29 in the gymnasium, with music by King Kong.

The Golden Eagles will be busy during the vacation, with road games scheduled at Weber State on Jan. 8, Utah State on Jan. 10, Dixie, Jan. 14, and Snow, Jan. 15.

Pianist Paula Ennis will visit the campus for a clinic on Jan. 10, and the faculty will present a clarinet recital at 3 p.m. on Jan. 16 in the auditorium.

Birthpangs: Captured Pakistani soldiers

Conceived in inferno, Bangla Desh newborn

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Conceived in an inferno of bitterness and bloodshed, new nation has been born to the world—Bangla Desh.

It emerged from the dark recesses of suppressed hostility and resentment and onto the fiery path trod by most new nations seeking equality among a family of old and new peoples—war.

The roots of Bangla Desh (Bengal Nation) are embedded in the soft, sodden soil of what was the eastern wing of Pakistan, a nation conceived by a British midwife which sought to end Hindu-Moslem enmity in India before the dying empire departed the Asian sub-continent in 1947.

Pakistan was established as a nation of two "wings" separated by nearly 1,000 miles of India. If the geography of the nation was an unnatural one, so was its sociological makeup.

In the west were Punjabis and Pathans, tall and austere desert dwellers. In the east were the short and swarthy Bengalis, unruly inhabitants of a tropical area who had a history of political ferment and violence in British India.

Although the east had a population edge, West Pakistan quickly asserted authority; it filled the government and managerial jobs and dominating business in the east.

Deprivation added to discontent.

After sporadic violence in the east, the situation boiled when President Ayub Mohammed Yahya Khan, a former general, held a general election in December, 1970, for a national assembly that was to draft a constitution for a return to civil government following 13 years of military rule.

The normally fragmented Bengalis voted overwhelmingly for the Awami League party of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, a charismatic 51-year-old politician, in election results that evoked surprise. Rahman's platform was autonomy for East Pakistan, and he got all of East Pakistan's assembly seats except two.

Consequently, Yahya Khan announced March 2 that the opening of the assembly was postponed indefinitely. His words signaled some of the frothing passions of the Bengalis to boil over. They went on the rampage in several areas of East Pakistan, killing non-Bengali Moslem shopkeepers and businessmen.

Rahman was able to halt the violence, but only by carrying forward his drive for autonomy.

The sheikh called a partial strike in the east and launched a civil disobedience movement. By March 15 the movement had escalated into a virtual takeover of East Pakistan by the Awami League.

At 10:30 the same night, the Pakistani army moved into Dacca with a terrible swiftness. Within the next two days, blood ran in the streets and alleys and flames licked hundreds of feet into the sky.

After the army asserted its control in Dacca, the troops planned to fan out from various garrisons to wrest the countryside from the grip of the Awami League and the people.

It took about six weeks for the army to push its way to the borders with India, which surround East Pakistan on three sides, burning villages and killing unknown thousands on the way in what was later to be called genocide.

As the army forged through the countryside, the first trickles of refugees into India began reaching 0.77 million, according to the Indian government.

Although the east had a population edge, West Pakistan quickly asserted authority; it filled the government and managerial jobs and dominating business in the east.

Deprivation added to discontent.

After sporadic violence in the east, the situation boiled when Calcutta, India, proclaimed the government-in-exile of Bangla Desh.

India provided a sympathetic refuge for the rebels and Parliament quickly pledged "full support" for their cause.

Pakistan resisted all suggestions for a settlement. Clashes between Indian troops and Pakistani forces pursuing the rebels back across the border began to emerge.

New law provides tax jolt

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There's a $70 million jolt in the new tax law for parents who have been providing for their children's education while cutting their own tax liability. Affected by the change are those who have set aside funds for children, via outright gifts of money, securities or property, or by setting up certain kinds of trust funds.

Under present law, all or some of the investment's return could be sheltered from taxation because the child, in filing a tax return, could claim both a personal exemption for himself and a standard deduction.

In 1971, up to $1,700 per child escaped the taxman that way. The maximum of tax-free income would have reached $2,050 in 1972.

The now law signed by President Nixon Dec. 10 whittles the tax-free income down to no more than $750 per child per year. The change is effective on 1972 income.

If a child is under 19 or a college student of any age, and if his parents provide more than one half his support, both he and his parent can claim him for a personal exemption. He qualifies whether his income is earned by his own labor or is "unearned"—that is, income from investments held in his name.

But under the new law, he no longer will qualify for a standard deduction taken against unearned income or for a standard deduction designed to relieve the poor of income taxes—will also be used to shelter some income of the comfortable.

The idea for the change in law came from Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee. He was disturbed that the "low-income allowance" or minimum standard deduction—designed to relieve the poor of income taxes—was also being used to shelter some income of the comfortable.

So the Treasury estimates it will collect $70 million in taxes in 1972. The Statue of Liberty in New York harbor is 151 feet tall, on a 154-foot pedestal and weighs 225 tons.

Route No. 1, Hansen

CRANBERRY MUFFINS
1/2 cups sugar
2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup shortening
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 cup fresh or frozen cranberries

Combine flour, baking powder, salt and sugar in mixing bowl. With a fork cut in shortening until it is broken into fine particles. Mix milk and egg, add to shortening-flour mixture and stir gently just until dry ingredients are moistened to make lumpy batter. Cut cranberries in half and sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar. Fold cranberries into batter. Fill-muffin cups rubbed with shortening two-thirds full and bake at 400 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes one dozen.

Couple recites nuptial promise

RICHFIELD — Joyce Lyn Brauburger and Ronnie Marvin Jones were united in marriage in an evening ceremony Dec. 4 at the Richfield Methodist Church.

Rev. Hardy Thompson, church pastor, performed the single ring ceremony. Brenda Hatt was pianist and played wedding marches.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a floor-length gown of Spanish lace over white satin, designed with fitted bodice and a full skirt with ruffled tiers of lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion was banded with lace and held by a tiara of rhinestones.

She carried a bouquet of pink-and-white shattered carnations and wore a pearl necklace belonging to Mrs. Howard DeWitt.

The bride was attended by Norma Rials and Christine Jones, sister of the bridegroom.

John Paulson served as best man. Ushers were Jesse Brauburger, brother of the bride, and Roland Jones, brother of the bridegroom.

The wedding was followed by a reception-and-dance at the American Legion hall. The bride's table was covered with white lace on which was displayed the three-tiered white wedding cake decorated in pink.

A miniature bride, dressed in a satin gown and pearls, and a bridegroom formed the top tier decorations. The cake was served by Claudette DeWitt, Mickey Holland and Carla McRoberts. Sandra Brauburger, sister of the bride, attended the guest register.

The gift tables were presided over by Kathie Kennison, Sandra Jones and Mrs. Ron Helsley, Shoshone. Mrs. Howard DeWitt was receptionist.

A Lovelier You

THE VOICE THAT CHEERS

By Mary Sue Miller

Try this little experiment: Say "Merry Christmas" aloud. Did you put the "merry" in it? Or did your voice sound flat and unconvincing—as though you really didn't care?

Every normal voice has a speaking range of nine to fifteen "diverse" pitches from low to high. Each pitch conveys a different meaning to a listener. Piercingly shrill tones are interpreted as anger, fear, excitement. Sonorous levels express deep feeling, sincerity and, sometimes, even veneration. A shade of meaning and emotion ride on the pitch of your voice.

You will become acutely aware of the differences if only you listen to yourself and get acquainted with your voice. Read this column aloud. Begin by speaking in your lowest voice and work up to your highest. After a few run-throughs you will be convinced—that a certain tone of voice expresses your most attractive self. Or otherwise.

Which you want to maintain a warming voice, there's a dividend: Your tones grow more musical and appealing in all registers. Why, even when you are angry, you will be able to sound reasonable. But let's not speak of anger at this happy season. Let's read the lines of Sir Walter Scott and sound the "merry."

Hear on the wood!

the wind is chill;

But let it whistle

as it will,

We'll keep our Christmas

merry still.

Trees for windbreaks

BURLEY — The forest nursery at the University of Idaho has 30 kinds of seedling trees for windbreaks and other farm purposes.

Orders may be placed now with the local county agents, advised Vernon Burlison, extension forester. Lists of species and prices are available at the Cassia County agent's office and other county agent's offices in the state. The little trees will be delivered next spring.

Available varieties include such evergreens as Scotch pine, Douglas-fir, Ponderosa pine, blue spruce, Norway spruce and grand fir. Popular broadleaf trees are Siberian pea, Russian olive, green ash, Siberian elm, golden willow and hybrid poplar.

Regulations restrict use of these trees to forest, windbreak and Christmas tree plantings. They must be planted outside corporate municipal limits and cannot be used for ornamental purposes.

Deadline for orders is March 10, but Burlison suggests early requests to be sure need will be met.

Director named

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Thomas Belita is the new director of the Lincoln County March-of-Dimes.

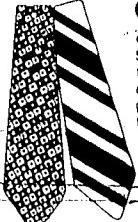

Mrs. Belita reminds everyone that birth defects are forever and help is needed.

James G. Jamies is the Idaho state chairman and Arnold Palmer, golfing great, is national chairman.

installed

FILER — David Ramseyer was installed new master counselor of the West End Chapter of DeMolay at the Masonic Temple.

Duane Ramseyer served as installing master counselor, assisted by Tom Shouse, senior counselor; Pat Anderson, junior counselor; Rex Reed, senior deacon; Rev. Elam Anderson, chaplain, and Clinton Dougherty, marshal.

DeMolay is an International fellowship of young men of ages 14 to 21 whose slogan is "No DeMolay shall fall as a citizen, as a leader or as a man."

Special guests introduced were Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bonnichson, worthy patron and worthy matron of Order of the Eastern Star; Arthur Chatburn, worshipful master of Filer Lodge 65 AF and AM, and Vince Hardi, worshipful master-elect of the lodge; Janice Shepherd, worthy adviser of the Filer Chapter of the Order of the Rainbow for Girls, and Clinton Dougherty, DeMolay dad of the West End Chapter. All visiting Rainbow Girls were welcomed.

Special recognition was given Barbara Schaefer, DeMolay Chapter sweetheart, who was presented a bouquet of flowers from the chapter.

The dining hall was decorated in a holiday theme. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Duane Ramseyer and Mrs. Tom Shouse.

BURLEY — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Golden Collins, Roosevelt, Utah, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Gaye, to Ricky J. Berg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Berg, Burley.

Miss Collins, an honor student, was graduated from Utah School for the Deaf at Ogden, Utah. She completed six years of LDS seminary and has fulfilled an LDS mission to Alberta, Saskatchewan, Canada.

Berg attended Burley High School and the Idaho State School for the Deaf at Gooding, where he was graduated. He later received a B. S. degree from Gallaudet College, Washington, D. C.

A Dec. 23 wedding is planned in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple. After a brief honeymoon, the couple will reside in Gooding, where the bridegroom is employed.

She has been awarded a certificate in recognition of the prestigious honor.

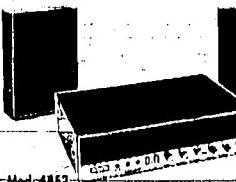

She is the daughter-in-law of Mrs. Pat Stradley, Twin Falls. She was notified of her award by V. Gilbert Beers, Ph. D., who noted she was one of a carefully selected number of elementary educators across the country selected for honors. The citation stated she earned this tribute by "exemplary performance in the classroom, contribution to the field of education in general, and many services to her community."

Mrs. Lancaster will be featured in the national awards volume "Leaders of American Elementary Education," 1971 edition. Her complete biography, specifying the many achievements which led to her selection, will be included in the edition.

SHOSHONE — Dolores Town was elected president of the Dietrich Hobby Club when the group met at the home of Mrs. Norman Ridinger.

Johnnie Southwick was elected vice-president and Mary Roche, secretary-treasurer.

Secret pals were revealed and Christmas gifts exchanged.

The next meeting will be on Jan. 12 at the home of Mrs. Duane Aslett with Johnnie Southwick as hostess.

Auxiliary, canton meet

Tuesday, December 21, 1971 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

BURLEY — The Ladies Auxiliary Patriarchs Militant and Canton Rupert No. 19 held their meeting this past week at the Burley IOOF Hall.

Mrs. Esther Arbogast read "The White Rose" which tells of the three legends of Christmas, the white rose, the holly and the poinsettia, during the program.

It was announced the officers of the canton recently elected include Robert Nelson, captain; Ed Glorfield, lieutenant; Lester Brady, ensign; Ted Arbogast, clerk and LeRoy Fenton, accountant.

Mrs. Arbogast gave the opening and closing thoughts for the evening.

After the business meeting a Christmas gift exchange was held.

Wash leather furniture with soap and water. Then wipe with a fine furniture cream, the Cleanliness Bureau suggests.
